Number of Deaths Reported After COVID Vaccines Jumps by More Than 2,000 in 1 Week, According to VAERS

VAERS data released today by the CDC showed a total of 438,441 reports of adverse events from all age groups following COVID vaccines, including 9,048 deaths and 41,015 serious injuries between Dec. 14, 2020 and July 2, 2021.

Data released today by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) included 9,048 reports of deaths, across all age groups, following COVID vaccines — an increase of more than 2,000 compared with the previous week. The data comes directly from reports submitted to the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System (VAERS).

VAERS is the primary government-funded system for reporting adverse vaccine reactions in the U.S. Reports submitted to VAERS require further investigation before a causal relationship can be confirmed.

Every Friday, VAERS makes public all vaccine injury reports received as of a specified date, usually about a week prior to the release date.

Data released today show that between Dec. 14, 2020 and July 2, 2021, a total of 438,441 total adverse events were reported to VAERS, including 9,048 deaths — an increase of 2,063 over the previous week. There were 41,015 serious injury reported during the same time period — up 6,950 compared with last week.

Pfizer says boosters needed, U.S. federal health agencies, scientists disagree

As The Defender reported today, U.S. federal health agencies and the maker of one of the most popular COVID vaccines are publicly at odds over if or when fully vaccinated people will need a third "booster" dose.

Pfizer announced Thursday it will seek Emergency Use Authorization from the FDA in August for a third dose of its COVID vaccine. The drugmaker predicted those who have been fully vaccinated will need a booster shot within six to 12 months of receiving their second dose of the Pfizer vaccine.

But the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) hours later issued a joint statement by the FDA and Centers for Disease and Control and Prevention (CDC) saying, "Americans who have been fully vaccinated do not need a booster shot at this time."

BUY TODAY: Robert F. Kennedy, Jr.'s New Book — 'The Real Anthony Fauci'

The HHS statement did not explicitly mention Pfizer, but said "a science-based, rigorous process" headed by the CDC, FDA and the National Institutes of Health would determine when or whether boosters were necessary.

Pfizer's assertions about the need for boosters contradict other research, and several experts pushed back against the claim.

"There's really no indication for a third booster or a third dose of an mRNA vaccine, given the variants that we have circulating at this time," Dr. Céline Gounder, an infectious disease specialist at Bellevue Hospital Center in New York, told the New York Times. "In fact, many of us question whether you will ever need boosters."

John P. Moore, professor of microbiology and immunology at Weill Cornell Medicine, told the Washington Post:

"No one is saying we'll never need a booster, but to say we need it now and give the public the impression the vaccines are failing and something needs to be done as a matter of urgency. ... The time isn't now. The decisions that are going to be made will be made by federal agencies."

Pfizer and BioNTech are developing a version of their COVID vaccine that targets the Delta variant, The New York Times reported this week. The companies expect to begin clinical trials of the vaccine in August.

Pfizer and BioNTech reported — based on their own studies that have not been published, nor peer-reviewed, according to the Times — that a booster given six months after the second dose of vaccine increased the potency of antibodies against the original virus and the Beta variant by five- to tenfold.

Vaccine efficacy may decline six months after immunization, the companies said in a news release, and booster doses may be needed to fend off virus variants. The vaccine makers said they will submit their findings to the FDA in the coming weeks, a step toward gaining authorization for booster shots.

17-year-old student required to get vaccinated suffers heart condition

Concerns around COVID vaccines and heart inflammation, especially in young males, continue to circulate. But according to an update posted today on the CDC website, the agency's researchers have concluded the benefits of the vaccine outweigh the risks of myocarditis after vaccination.

European drug regulators today announced they also have found a "possible link" between a "very rare heart inflammation" and the Pfizer and Moderna vaccines, but sided with U.S. regulators, saying they also believe the benefits of the shots outweighed any risks.

Meanwhile, The Defender continues to report on teens who have experienced heart issues after taking the vaccines — including a 17-year-old student who developed symptoms of a heart condition about one week after his first dose of Pfizer's COVID and subsequently was diagnosed with a heart condition.

The teen's father, Fabio Berlingieri, told "Fox & Friends" his son had COVID and recovered, but was required to get the vaccine in order to play soccer.

Fox News medical contributor Dr. Nicole Saphier, who appeared in the interview with Berlingieri, said the way the New York Times and the CDC are presenting the data regarding the adverse effects of vaccines in adolescents is "irresponsible."

"They cherry-pick the way they present the data. It's an all or none approach. They say either adolescents are fully vaccinated or every single one of them is going to get COVID-19. That's the way they are balancing it right now," Saphier said.

Saphier said more weight should be given to potential adverse effects, like myocarditis and other heart inflammation issues, when deciding who should be vaccinated. She also encouraged the FDA to look closer at vaccines before recommending a universal policy.

Hundreds injured by COVID vaccines turn to GoFundMe for help

As reports of adverse events to COVID vaccines continue to grow in number, those injured by the vaccines are struggling to pay their medical bills.

As The Defender reported July 8, more than 180 people injured by COVID vaccines have had to turn to GoFundMe for help with large medical bills and other expenses, including Emma Burkey — the high school senior who underwent three brain surgeries due to blood clots after receiving J&J's COVID vaccine.

People facing huge medical bills after being injured by COVID vaccines have few options, beyond what their own health insurance covers. That's because under federal law, vaccine makers are shielded from liability.

Those injured by COVID vaccines can only file a claim for compensation through the Countermeasures Injury Compensation Program (CICP), run by HHS.

Since June 1, the CICI reported 869 pending cases but offered no further information. Since the program's inception in 2010, only 29 claims have been paid, with an average payout of around $200,000. The other 452 claims (91.4%) were denied. Ten claims won approval but were deemed ineligible for compensation.

Biden plans to deploy federal teams in door-to-door COVID vaccine campaign

Making no mention of any safety concerns related to the vaccines, President Joe Biden this week announced plans to ramp up the federal government's efforts to get more Americans vaccinated under a new "door-to-door" program.

As The Defender reported this week, under Biden's program, the White House will deploy teams of officials from the CDC, Federal Emergency Management Administration and other federal health agencies. Biden suggested the unique door-knocking approach was needed now that "we are continuing to wind down the mass vaccination sites that did so much in the spring."

Biden said the administration will also "step up efforts to get vaccines to doctors who serve younger people so that adolescents ages 12 to 18 can get vaccinated and — as they go for back-to-school check-ups or getting ready for their physicals they need for fall sports."

Biden cited concerns over the COVID Delta variant, which he said is more transmissible and has forced some European countries to return to lockdowns. He did not mention any of the safety concerns previously noted by the CDC and FDA, including blood clots and heart inflammation, associated with the vaccines.

Number of cases among fully vaccinated continue to climb

Reports of COVID breakthrough cases among fully vaccinated people continue to rise, as The Defender reported earlier this week. As of June 28, the CDC reported 4,686 breakthrough cases resulting in death and hospitalization.

Nearly 30 people in Louisiana who were fully vaccinated against COVID died from the virus, according to the Louisiana Department of Health (LDH). Dr. Joseph Kanter, LDH state health officer and medical director, said 27 people between the ages of 28 and 93 have died with COVID more than two weeks after being fully vaccinated.

According to the San Francisco Examiner, more than 7,550 breakthrough cases have been reported, through June 23, in Californians who were fully vaccinated. Most cases were minor, but 62 people died from COVID, according to the California Department of Public Health.

California's public health agency reported 584 fully vaccinated people had been hospitalized with COVID infection, but hospitalization status wasn't available for 46% of post-vaccination cases. On July 7, state health officials reported 2,013 new infections among all Californians, including 24 deaths.

According to a report by the Tennessee Department of Health (TDH), breakthrough cases have resulted in 140 hospitalizations and 20 deaths in the state. As of May 1, TDH has not counted all breakthrough cases as the CDC “asked that only severe outcomes (hospitalization or death) be reported.”

123 days and counting, CDC ignores The Defender's inquiries

According to the CDC website, “the CDC follows up on any report of death to request additional information and learn more about what occurred and to determine whether the death was a result of the vaccine or unrelated.”

On March 8, The Defender contacted the CDC with a written list of questions about reported deaths and injuries related to COVID vaccines. After repeated attempts, by phone and email, to obtain a response to our questions, a health communications specialist from the CDC's Vaccine Task Force contacted us on March 29 — three weeks after our initial inquiry.

The individual received our request for information from VAERS, but said she had never received our list of questions, even though employees we talked to several times said CDC press officers were working through the questions and confirmed the representative had received them. We provided the list of questions again along with a new deadline, but never received a response.

On May 19, a CDC employee said our questions had been reviewed and our inquiry was pending in their system, but would not provide us with a copy of the response. We were told we would be contacted by phone or email with the response.

We have contacted the CDC numerous times since and were told nobody knew the specialist from the agency's Vaccine Task Force who contacted us in March, and our request was still pending in the system. It has been 123 days since we sent our first email inquiring into VAERS data and reports and we have yet to receive a response.

I agree with you, Jason Millman, about just saying no to all the covid propaganda - and to all the propaganda which we are constantly inundated with, not just regarding covid!

But I disagree with your use of the word "genocide" to describe the mass vaccination campaigns. I think a more accurate word is "eugenics," which refers to getting rid of people (through any number of means, not only via dangerous vaccines) who are deemed to be less fit or desirable than the rest of the population.

I am one of the many people who succumbed to the immense societal (and in my own case, also familial) pressure to get vaccinated. After I got the second shot, I experienced multiple, severe, devastating adverse reactions, some of which were so painful and long-lasting that I was desperate and suicidal for over two weeks during the most intensely painful aspects of the adverse vaccine reactions. And that was despite the fact that I was taking an opiate drug (Percoset) to enable me to (just barely) tolerate the mind-bending pain.

It has been nearly three months since I got my 2nd dose of the (Pfizer) vaccine and my health is still seriously negatively impacted in multiple ways. At this point I do not expect to ever recover my previous level of health and vitality. I have less than zero trust not only of our entire conventional western medical paradigm but more specifically of our whole system of government, starting with the sickeningly total corruption of both of our major political parties. I despise both of them. I am sick unto death about the reality we live in the midst of. The possibility of changing anything fundamental feels absolutely impossible to me.

I'm very sorry for you, and i certainly understand the familial pressure (banished from my family). I'm grateful that you're using your experience to post on this website as a warning to others. Given your situation, it's admirable that you are still doing your part to help the world.

Thank you.

How can we do more, though? Posting here on this site feels good, but I don't think it will change anything in the wider community, country, or world. The entire world-wide political and economic systems are hopelessly corrupt and sick.

In answer to a previous reply to this post, posting on Facebook (in adverse covid vaccine reactions sites) feels hopeless, too. Some of my posts, which were nothing other than statements of fact, have been taken down by FB, under the label "spam." Facebook seems to me to be simply yet another tool of an increasingly totalitarian, fascist government.

However, I haven't totally given up. I plan to contact progressive journalists and attempt to wake them up as to what is happening. I do not have high hopes for this endeavor! I'll do as much as I can, though, because my soul demands it.

Remember those death counts are only for America, they are rolling this C19 pseudo vaccine out all over the world in many countries, so it is entirely fair to call it a genocide, in fact I would call it the grandest scale genocide the world has ever seen. It is a genocide of the human race. It seems to me the more that time passes the more correct this assertion has become.

I used to call the childhood vaccine program a eugenics operation, the reason being is that it was intended for all those who were too dumb and ignorant to know better, basically as a way to wreck their progeny because the eugenicists technocrats seemed to believe intelligence was genetic. (I do not share their opinion, I think it is primarily dictated by the quality of the diet and purity of the environment (as in clean and non-toxic) as well as quality of the education, with genetics only having a less significant effect)

The C19 pseudo vaccine program however is looking more like an end run, like they are going after everyone, worse it is looking like the technology of these new kinds of injections are designed to defile and mutate human biology, so one could call them dysgenics shots, especially if the dna and the germ line is being modified to

Yes, and this number is probably less than a tenth of all vax deaths. The 27 European Union countries have recorded 17,503 deaths, 303 deaths in Australia, thousands in England and Scotland, hundreds more in Israel, Indonesia, Japan etc etc. Probably well over 100,000 already dead and seems to be escalating each week. Genocide.

For some reason, there has lately been much more foreign reporting to VAERS of deaths caused by US EUA Covid vaccines. There were 211 US deaths reported this past week (5247 up from 5036), but 1852 foreign deaths reported to VAERS. (SEE TYRONE B's link to VAERS below.) The trend began last week. Does anyone know why this trend is occurring? Maybe because fewer people are being vaccinated in the US, but more are the world over. Either way, this is a crime against humanity.

Genocide means a conscious campaign to kill an entire population as defined by their professed religion or their ethnicity or their genetic heritage defined by their professed religion, or their ethnicity, or their genetic heritage and way of life - e.g. the Indigenous Americans living in the Americas before the arrival of the Europeans in the 1500s. If these covid vaccines are being given to everyone around the world regardless of religion, nationality, ethnicity, race or racial identity, etc. then we need a different word. But I think that arguing about semantics is really a waste of our time. We are both vehemently opposed to these vaccines.

The reason I chose the word "eugenics" is that it seems to me that the covid vaccines are preferentially injuring and killing the most sensitive among us, not only physically but also spiritually and emotionally sensitive. I've been considered "too emotionally sensitive" as well as "too sensitive to chemicals" (such as pesticides, flame retardants, artificial food colors and other artificial ingredients in food, synthetic perfumes, synthetic carpets, synthetic dyes and fabrics, etc.) My emotional sensitivity has always been nothing other than an

If you do have unusual sensitivities, perhaps research it on mercola or greenmedinfo websites. For example, it might be the MTHFR gene, which is easily tested and can be ~bypassed by specific foods and such.

Whilst I reflect your sentiments I do have to pick up on your mention that genocide is not the appropriate word as I contend it is the exact word. After all genocide is the intent to kill, remove, exterminate people in this case. Genocide can include eugenics as the method though even then we must bear in mind that eugenics is more about building a new race so eugenics doesn't necessarily include extermination but to alter species to produce new race offspring while the old species dies off naturally.

It will suffice to say genocide is far more accurate because there is no ambiguity. Personally I had considered the even more appropriate word of senicide (killing of the elderly) since statistically the average fatality has averaged around the 70s but as time has passed and now far more younger are seriously put at risk I will stay as time has passed and now far more younger are seriously put at risk I will stay with genocide. Regards.

If you consider the transhumanism agenda then I would definitely say this is eugenics. Gene altering therapy through changing the proteins in the body (spike proteins and deleting strands of DNA to create cyborgs) and a hive mind connecting with WIFI technology creating a new collective consciousness and people. They talk about this on bit chute, brighton.com which explain this specifically better than perhaps I have. Also Transhumanism is talked about on you tube, but like many 2030 agenda items things are being taken down at a rapid rate due to being owned by google the biggest pharmaceutical giant of them all.

Annette, I am so sad for what has happened to you. I am very sad to realize so many intelligent people are completely mesmerized by the mainstream lies. I hate that you are suffering, and yet it seems that it is taking us all terrible personal suffering for us to finally see the total loss of care for others, in favor of money- job, career, reputation, etc.

This same play book is happening over and over in so many aspects of our world. I lost my health to wireless- cellphones, celltowers, wifi,... and I had no idea these caused health issues. Most people don't know. Just because we don't personally experience the harm, does not make "IT" safe, whatever "IT" is. Intelligent people are mesmerized by wireless. They are mesmerized by medicine, and chemical farming, and nuclear energy, and GMO's, and all manner of harmful products and applications.

How will we survive the destruction of our beautiful eco-sphere? No idea.

But we are here, reading this, supporting the efforts of The Defender and caring.

Annette, I am so sorry you experienced an adverse event. I hope you reported it using VAERS. Doctors are not obligated to report any adverse event: so. I suspect.

that there is an under reporting of covid reactions as well as any other vaccine reaction.

I experienced an adverse event in 2018 due to the pneumonia shot. The shot I was given was supposed to be the first of a two part series. I never made it in for the second part. I spent 5 months away from home going through intensive physical and occupational therapy to rebuild my strength in my upper and lower body. I had some good doctors throughout my time in the various hospitals that I stayed at.

Thank you. I hope so too.

I've tried and failed three times to report my case to VAERS. A big part of the problem is that one of the many negative reactions I got from the vax is difficulty concentrating. I've spent at least ten hours total (in several different installments) trying to detail everything that happened to me after I got the second shot, and I still have not been able to write it all down clearly and coherently! And then there's a whole section dedicated to describing doctors' visits - which were merely online, video visits - after my symptoms became extreme, which I haven't even started on yet. However, I plan to get my VAERS report done and submitted as soon as possible. I suspect my sense of hopelessness is really the main reason I haven't been able to finish it yet.

It is very difficult to navigate their program and takes a MINIMUM of twenty minutes if you are fast on the computer. If not, it can take an hour or more & is several pages. I am so sorry what you are experiencing!

Sorry for your experience and hope you recover. I do believe in change. I mean life is change. It's totally possible 10 years or so from now people will realize Big Pharma makes people sicker, not healthier, and holistic options are the way to go. So what little we do now could have a butterfly effect. We need to get the message out in little we do now could have a butterfly effect. we need to get the message out in spite of the censors!

Annette, so sorry and painful to read this, but it is extremely important that you share all your own feelings and experiences after the injection. It will help others to understand and possibly avoid what happened to you. Your last sentence is extremely important, since it shows your hopelessness, one of the things which relates to the details of that spike protein, whose genetic code was injected into your body. According to what's in fact there, people are might be getting, after the spike protein is digested, pieces of a high homolog of anti-VMAT2 protein, responsible for human believe system. Believe is clearly related to hope, but hopefully those physical pieces affecting your body and mind, at some point will leave your body and you will get better:) I always believed in 'wonders' and hope that will be the case with you.

I'm so sorry this has happened to you and I can totally sympathize with your feelings about our corrupt leaders and health care system. I know many people do not believe in the power of prayer, though many do of course. I prefer to think of it as an acknowledging of the Immanent Divine to facilitate a healing (hard to put in words). I will do this on your behalf. I do experience the miraculous now and then.

Thank you. I also believe in the power of prayer. If I didn't I would not still be alive. Bless you.

The "vaccination" campaigns are genocide. Many thousands are being killed by the "vaccines" the world over, so genocide is the correct word. Good luck with your health and now of course you'll know what to do, when they offer you a Covid booster/flu jab for the winter.

Thank you. And believe me, I will never get another vaccine (for anything!) for the rest of my life!

Annette, you have to expect to recover, (if you want to that is?) otherwise, you simply won't, and your brain becomes convinced it won't! It won't be considered genocide until it happens in plan view, I'm sure the ones that died, would now think it might be genocide?

Please don't go for the third shot, hold off, be strong, 🍊❤️ no matter what the pressure is? or where it comes from? it's your life, not their's, to do what they think you should do! JUST SAY NO! It gets easier after awhile! Sending healthful recovery thoughts your way! 🙏

"Oh it only happens to so few people" croon the supporters and believers. But if natural medicine had one single adverse event, the FDA would be all over them, exaggerating the "facts" and shutting them down. Yet, when it comes to mainstream medicine, it is "just side effects" and acceptable collateral damage "for the general good". Well I say this is NOT for the general good. People don't think that something will happen to them. But what if THEY were a statistic? Would the crooners still be saying "oh but that happens to so few people" if THEIR friend was affected or killed? Also, that the CDC and FDA downplay medical vulnerabilities, saying on their website FAQs that people with various vulnerabilities should indeed be vaccinated, is just heinous and raises my hair on its end. As time goes on, I have less and less respect for mainstream "medicine". It's medical violence, not medicine and certainly not healing. It's time for the masses to wake up!

It's past time for many and some resist waking up and may never see what truth seekers do. The allopathic medical community has long been corrupt and based on what pharmaceutical drugs to give after their assessment of your symptoms. Medical errors kill over 250,000 people every year but hospitals are allowed to continue making profits while making deadly mistakes. Best to stay fit and healthy and avoid mainstream medicine.

My sentiments exactly! Avoid allopathic sick care at all costs! Unless a body part is hanging off.

Good for trauma care (within reason), but not much else.

Maybe... or maybe not... I've experienced some dreadful trauma care myself. Five years and a half years ago. I was nearly run over by a car went to the ER

E.g.: Two and a half years ago, I was nearly run over by a car, went to the ER, and the medical staff managed to only diagnose and treat one of the three broken bones I had in my right wrist and arm! As if that wasn't bad enough, I was iatrogenically injured by the overly tight casts they put on me. I repeatedly complained of pain, and pointed out the swelling, limited sensation, coldness (which signified impaired circulation) and the obvious purple / blue discoloration of the visible skin near the cast, but to no avail. The outrageous way the entire medical staff treated me throughout the whole "healing" process was as much of a trauma in the end as the initial injuries were! I have lasting vascular damage, weakness, swelling, and pain in the injured arm, wrist, and hand from the overly tight casts. That would be bad enough for anyone to bear, but it is especially bitter to me because I used to be a classical pianist and a professional therapeutic massage therapist. I am unable to practice either of these arts now due to the lasting damage caused by the terrible medical treatment I was given.

That's 250K Americans per year. It must be much higher worldwide.
